

ABSTRACT

The present invention provides according to a first of its aspects, new compounds that have a flexible scaffold with various degrees of conformational restriction and accordingly are useful as drug candidates. These compounds may 5 be used to produce new combinatorial libraries that will permit to screen for and select drug candidates for a variety of uses in human medicine, veterinary medicine and in agriculture.

10034212.010302